

Message from the Director

For fifty years the FBI has sought the public's assistance in a very special way. Through the publication of fugitives in various media, beginning with newspapers and magazines and now utilizing new technology, such as the Internet, the FBI continues to seek public assistance in locating wanted fugitives. The FBI's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" celebrates not only a FBI success story, but emphasizes the need for cooperation in the fight against violent crime.

The "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" program gives a glimpse of the crime problems America has faced over five decades. While it began with bank robbers and murder suspects fleeing state jurisdiction, it progressed into seeking major crime figures, serial killers and terrorists. This last decade illustrated the transnational aspect of crime and the FBI's commitment to seeking international terrorists and drug traffickers who pose a significant problem to U.S. citizens both home and abroad.

The success of the "Ten Most Wanted Fugitive" illustrates the hard work, dedication, and integrity of the people of the FBI, but it also demonstrates that public cooperation is vital to the efforts of the FBI to meet its mission.

FBI's "TEN MOST WANTED FUGITIVES" PROGRAM

The Beginning

On February 7, 1949, an article entitled "FBI's Most Wanted Fugitives Named" appeared in The Washington Daily News. The reporter from United Press International had contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation and asked for the names and descriptions of the "toughest guys" the FBI wanted to capture. In hopes the publicity would lead to their arrest, the FBI listed the names of ten fugitives it considered to be the most potentially dangerous. The story generated so much publicity and public appeal, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover implemented the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" program a year later on March 14, 1950.

This "Top Ten" program relied heavily on the nation's news media. Recognizing the need for public assistance in locating fugitives, the "Top Ten" program was designed to publicize particularly dangerous fugitives who might not otherwise merit nationwide attention. And it worked! Nine of the first twenty "Top Tennes" were arrested due to citizen cooperation. This includes the very first "Top Tennes," Thomas Holden, who was arrested after a citizen recognized his photograph in an Oregon newspaper.

Today

With "Top Ten" postings on the FBI's Internet site, www.fbi.gov, the FBI is able to reach across the country and the world for public assistance in tracking "Top Ten" fugitives. Radio programs such as the ABC Radio Network broadcast weekly series FBI, This Week attract public attention to the "Top Ten" program. Public spirited television programming, such as America's Most Wanted: America Fights Back, provides additional nationwide publicity for the "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" program.

In today's world, editors and news directors want the local angle which is not always present in a "Top Ten" story. The "Top Ten" program relies on publicity from coast to coast. Now, with the popularity of the Internet, the FBI has begun to use cyberspace to keep the public better informed of fugitives' status.

The Program

Since its inception, 458 fugitives have been placed on the "Top Ten" list and 429 have been apprehended or located. But just as the priorities of the FBI have changed, so has the makeup of the "Top Ten" list. Through the 1950s, the list was primarily comprised of bank robbers, burglars, and car thieves. Once into the turbulent 1960s, the list reflected the revolutionaries of the time. Destruction of government property, sabotage, and kidnapping dominated the list. In the 1970s, with the FBI's concentration on organized crime and terrorism, the "Top Ten" included many fugitives with organized crime ties or links to terrorist groups. This emphasis, along with serial murders and drug-related crimes, continues today.

One hundred thirty-four of the "Top Ten" apprehensions have been the result of citizen recognition.

As a result of the very first airing of America's Most Wanted, David James Roberts, #409, was captured.

On May 19, 1996 Leslie Isben Rogge, #430, was captured as a direct result of the Internet. Rogge had spent 6 years on the "Top Ten" List.

Two fugitives were apprehended as a result of visitors on an FBI tour recognizing a "Top Tennes" on the "Top Ten" exhibit.

"Top Ten" apprehensions have been made in every state except Alaska, Maine, and Delaware.

Most "Top Tennes" are apprehended an average of approximately 1,000 miles from the crime scene.

FBI's "TEN MOST WANTED FUGITIVES" PROGRAM

There have been 458 fugitives on the "Top Ten" list.

In the 1970s, Patty Hearst and her abductors were never placed on the "Top Ten" list. There was already enough publicity surrounding the crime

Ramzi Ahmed Yousef, wanted for the World Trade Center bombing, made the eleventh fugitive to become a "special addition."

In 1968, Ruth Eisemann-Schier, wanted for kidnapping and extortion, was the first woman on the "Top Ten" list.

Only 7 women have been placed on the "Top Ten" list.

The List

Many offices of the FBI are involved in selecting those fugitives who will make the list. The Criminal Investigative Division (CID) at FBI Headquarters contacts all 56 Field Offices to submit candidates for the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" list. The nominees received are reviewed by Special Agents in the CID and the Office of Public and Congressional Affairs. The selection of the proposed candidate(s) is forwarded to the Assistant Director of the CID for his/her approval and then to the FBI's Deputy Director for final approval.

Criteria

There are two primary criteria used to determine who should be placed on the list. First, the fugitive must be considered a particularly dangerous menace to society and/or have a lengthy record of committing serious crimes. Second, the FBI must believe nationwide publicity will assist in apprehending the fugitive.

Removal from the List

Unless a "Top Tenner" is captured, found dead, or surrenders, "Top Tenners" are only removed from the list when they meet one of two conditions. First, the process against them is dismissed by a court of law. Second, they no longer fit "Top Ten" criteria.

When a fugitive is eliminated from the list, another is added to take his or her place.

Special Additions

Over the years, there have been occasions when the list exceeded ten due to special additions. This has occurred eleven times to date. On October 17, 1970, four additions were made bringing the "Top Ten" List to an all-time high of 16.

Statistics

While it is not possible to isolate a specific criminal type, using the information from the apprehended "Top Tenners," the following "Top Ten" statistics are available.

Average Height:	5'10"
Average Weight:	168.5 pounds
Average Age at Addition:	37.4 years
Average Time on List:	316 days
Longest Time on List:	6,800+ days (and counting)

1 Thomas James Holden Placed on list 3/14/50; arrested 6/23/51

When Thomas Holden was placed on the list, the FBI was well acquainted with him. Holden had been convicted of robbing a mail train back in the late twenties. He was a product of the "easy days" before the rampant, lawless gangs of the Midwest were curbed by federal statutes enlarging the FBI's authority to combat crime.

In 1930, Holden made an ingenious escape from Leavenworth and was sought by the FBI as an escaped federal prisoner. He pushed his luck too far, renewing his criminal contacts and associating with such notorious mobsters as Alvin Karpis, Verne Miller and Frank Nash.

While Holden was enjoying his precarious freedom from Leavenworth, he is alleged to have been one of the "outside" crew responsible for a sensational armed break from Leavenworth in December 1931.

The FBI's two-year search for him ended on July 7, 1932, when Special Agents and local police officers surrounded him and a fellow escapee on a golf course at Kansas City, Missouri. The pair was armed

'Most Wanted' Series Traps Slaying Suspect

PORTLAND, Ore.—The flight of Thomas James Holden, sought since 1949 for a triple slaying in Chicago, has ended as a result of a series of stories being carried by International News Service describing the nation's "10 Most Wanted" criminals.

Holden was seized by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents near Beaverton, Ore., June 23 and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the arrest resulted from an alert citizen identifying the fugitive from a picture carried with the INS series in the Portland Oregonian.

Recognized in Picture

Holden is wanted for the killings of his wife, her brother and her half brother at Holden's home.

Mr. Hoover praised the man who recognized Holden from the picture and the INS series, written by James Lee on the FBI's 10 "most wanted" fugitives. Mr. Lee is on the staff of the INS Washington bureau.

The tip came from a plasterer. He gave the information to the Portland FBI office. Holden is a one-time associate of the notorious Alvin Karpis, Verne Miller and Frank Nash. He has been sought since June 4, 1949.

Notorious Red Holden Dies in Illinois Prison

By the Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 19.—Tom (Red) Holden, 57, a wife killer, train robber, prison breaker and once listed as one of the FBI's 10 most wanted men, died yesterday in Stateville Penitentiary of a heart attack. He had been in the prison hospital since February.

only with their golf clubs. Returned to prison, Holden did "easy time," exempted from hard labor because of a rheumatic heart condition.

When Thomas Holden was released November 28, 1947, most of the prominent members of the underworld society he had known were no longer around. A number of the more reckless desperadoes had elected to "shoot it out" with law enforcement officers and died in the attempt to escape. Others, luckier — or smarter — were in Alcatraz or similar government institutions.

Possibly Holden was impressed by the record. At any rate, for eighteen months he led a comparatively quiet life. Returning to Chicago where his wife, Lillian, and two sons resided, he spent most of his time around various neighborhood taverns. He didn't have a steady job.

On June 5, 1949 at 3:15 in the morning, the Chicago police were directed by radio to investigate a shooting on the West Side. In a fourth floor apartment two men and a woman lay dead. A .38 revolver containing four spent cartridges and two loaded shells was on a dresser.

The victims were Mrs. Lillian Holden and her two brothers. They had been shot to death by her husband, Thomas James Holden, after a drinking party.

Holden was charged with murder and five days later was seen in the vicinity of Cedar Lake, Indiana. With this evidence of his flight from the State of Illinois, the Chicago Police Department sought FBI assistance. A Federal complaint was issued on November 4, 1949 charging him with unlawful flight across state lines to avoid prosecution for the crime of murder.

On June 23, 1951, Thomas James Holden was apprehended by FBI agents near Beaverton, Oregon. The arrest was the result of a series of stories carried by International News Service (INS) describing the nation's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." An alert citizen identified the fugitive from a picture carried in the INS series in the Portland Oregonian newspaper.

2 Morley Vernon King Placed on list 3/15/50; arrested 10/31/51.

A steamer trunk containing the body of a woman was found July 9, 1947, under the back porch of a San Luis Obispo, California hotel. The woman had been strangled with a man's scarf. An autopsy revealed she had been dead approximately one week.

Fingerprints of the victim were forwarded to the FBI Identification Division, Washington, D.C., where they were identified as those of Mrs. Helen King. Local authorities investigating the murder ascertained King, husband of the victim, had been operating a dining room in the hotel for several months. King left San Luis Obispo on July 8, 1947, at about 3 a.m.

THE FIRST TOP TEN

The investigation also revealed King was working in the hotel dining room on July 1, 1947 as usual, but the hotel maid found a “Do Not Disturb” sign on his door. King told the maid he did not want his room disturbed for a few days. The next day the house boy noticed a peculiar odor coming from King’s room and questioned him about it. King replied he was using perfume and a new type of shaving lotion. King had apparently kept the body of his wife on the floor of a closet for six days. The trunk used to hide the victim’s body was identified as coming from the basement of the hotel.

On July 12, 1947, the authorities at San Luis Obispo secured a warrant charging King with murder. On July 18, 1947, a complaint was filed before the U. S. Commissioner at Los Angeles, California, charging the fugitive with violating Section 408e, Title 18, U. S. Code, by fleeing from the State of California to avoid prosecution for the crime of murder.

King, a native of West Virginia, ran away from home at the age of 15. He had traveled extensively in Europe and for a number of years lived at Casablanca, Morocco, where he met and married his wife in 1931. The Kings returned to the United States in 1934 and spent a great deal of time in New Orleans, Louisiana, where they operated a restaurant. Handicapped physically as his right leg was shorter than the left, King walked with a slight limp.

On October 31, 1951, King was arrested while shucking oysters in a restaurant in Philadelphia. King using the alias “William Wilson” had been working at the restaurant for several weeks. He was returned to California and sentenced to life imprisonment.

3 William Raymond Nesbit

Placed on list 3/16/50; arrested 3/18/50

On December 22, 1936, William Raymond Nesbit, together with three other men, including Harold Baker and his girlfriend, had burglarized a wholesale jewelry company at Sioux City, Iowa. The proprietor reported more than $37,000 worth of jewels had been stolen.

On the evening of December 31, 1936, all of the participants drove into Minnehaha County, five miles east of Sioux Falls, in order to obtain some dynamite for the purpose of making nitroglycerin. After getting out of the car, three of the men became involved in a fight. The girlfriend got out of the automobile and attempted to stop the fight. As she did so, Nesbit struck her on the head with a hammer several times and one of the other men shot her. She was dragged into a powder house. Baker was lying in the powder house apparently unconscious. One of men lit a fuse to some powder and fled from the scene. Baker’s girlfriend, although severely beaten and wounded, remained conscious and was able to crawl away.

Two Cave Heroes
Fly to Capital

Top G-Man Wants To Thank Them

By Called From

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 24.—Two courageous boys were flying to Washington today to receive FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover's personal plaudits for trapping the nation's Public Enemy No. 3 in a cave.

James Lewis, 14, and James Radeck, 13, left by airliner at 8:10 a.m.

The boys carried only an "atomic ray gun," Boy Scout knives and slingshots when they led their "posse" of five other boys in trapping James Raymond Nesbit, described by Hoover as one of the nation's most dangerous criminals, in an adventure reminiscent of Tom Sawyer's cave.

Jimmy Lewis was the "brains" of the operation that ended with the capture of Nesbit.

He spotted a picture of Nesbit in a newspaper and recognized the man as the "hermit" the boys had seen living in a cave along the Mississippi River bluffs.

The boys took members of their gang to the cave the next day. But Nesbit failed to appear and Lewis hit on the scheme of jamming snow down the stovepipe the convict had rigged.

Nesbit was literally smoked out of the cave so the boys got a good look at him to compare with the picture. Their suspicions confirmed, they ran to police, who made the capture as Lewis and his detachment watched from nearby. Nesbit gave up without a struggle.

Warden G. Norton Jameson, who returned Nesbit to the South Dakota prison from which he was a fugitive, paid them the $100 reward offered for the outlaw. Radeck got $25 and Lewis $75. But Lewis gave $10 each to the other members of their gang, Gary Batterson, 13; Richard Jenks 12; Richard Anderson 13; Myron Roth Jr., 13, and Larry Cherry, 12.

The fuse exploded 3,500 pounds of dynamite and 7,000 pounds of black powder, completely destroying Harold Baker. The explosion rocked the country side, shattering windows, mirrors and glassware in Sioux Falls, five miles away.

While the police were conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the blast, the authorities at a hospital in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, advised the Sioux City, Iowa police a woman had been brought to the hospital by two men and she was suffering from two bullet wounds, exposure and shock.

Investigation revealed information concerning the three men, including Nesbit, who had been responsible for the murder of Baker and for the shooting of Baker's girlfriend. Nesbit was apprehended at Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, on February 26, 1937. He was returned to Sioux Falls, South Dakota where he was tried and convicted for the murder of Harold Baker and received life imprisonment in the South Dakota State Penitentiary.

On February 18, 1946, Nesbit's life term was commuted to 20 years. Nesbit, during this term had become a trusty and eventually was allowed to leave the prison to perform his prison duties doing housework, working on the lawns and flowers, as well as a chauffeur. On September 4, 1946, when the night check was made, Nesbit was missing.

On December 26, 1946, a federal complaint was filed before the United States Commissioner at Rapid City, South Dakota, charging William Raymond Nesbit with unlawful flight to avoid confinement and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The FBI entered the search.

On March 16, 1950, a news article, which carried a picture of Nesbit together with his description and the offense for which he was wanted, was published in a St. Paul Minnesota newspaper as well as in other newspapers.

On Friday afternoon, March 17, 1950, James Lewis, age 14, arrived home from school and noted a newspaper on the kitchen floor which his mother had used to cover the floor after she had scrubbed it. As he glanced at the paper on the floor he noted a photograph of Nesbit and the accompanying article advising Nesbit was wanted by the FBI.

Lewis and his friend, James Radeck, 13, spent much of their time playing along the Mississippi River bank in St. Paul, Minnesota with other boys from the neighborhood. Over the past few months, they had become acquainted with "Ray," a man who lived in a cave in the river bank. They had visited Ray about once a week from November 1949, to early March 1950. He allowed them access to his cave, occasionally telling them stories about his travels. Finally, in early March, 1950, Ray told the boys to stay away from the cave because they were liable to get hurt.

Lewis cut the article out of the newspaper believing the man in the photograph was "Ray." Lewis took the article to Radeck who felt the man in the photo was thinner than Ray. Lewis wanted to call the police that night and inform them of their suspicions, but Radeck asked him to wait until the next day when they could go down to the cave and make sure Ray was the man in the photograph.

On Saturday morning, March 18, 1950, just 2 days after William Raymond Nesbit was placed on the "Top Ten" list, Nesbit was apprehended by the St. Paul Police due to the ingenuity, intelligence and courage displayed by two young boys.

4 Henry Randolph Mitchell

Placed on list 3/17/50; removed from list 7/18/58

Three employees of a local bank in Wiliston, Florida, had just returned from lunch on the afternoon of January 21, 1948. There were no patrons at the tellers' windows nor had the other employees returned to their work. It was the custom of the bank to close at 12:00 noon and reopen at 1:00 p.m.

At approximately 1:00 p.m. two men entered the bank. Both wore several days' growth of beard. One was tall and the other short. They closed the front door and approached the tellers' cages. Suddenly the two men drew pistols and ordered two employees to lie on the floor while covering the third. They proceeded to rob the cash boxes of $10,353.00. They placed the money in what appeared to be a laundry bag and walked out of the front door into the street where they entered a Chrysler sedan parked at the curb.

The bank was a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and consequently the FBI joined with local law enforcement agencies in an immediate investigation. The robbers were soon identified as ex-inmates of the Florida State Penitentiary. One of them, the tall one, has been apprehended. The other robber, the short one, was identified as Henry Randolph Mitchell.

Mitchell's criminal record dated back to 1924 when he was arrested in Tampa, Florida on a bad check charge. During the course of his career he was convicted in the states of Kentucky, Georgia, New York and Florida for grand larceny, violation of narcotics laws, breaking and entering, and forgery.

Mitchell remained on the "Top Ten" list for eight years, until the Federal District Court at Jacksonville dropped the bank robbery charge against Mitchell. Since more than 10 years had passed, prosecutors felt the memory of witnesses would be too hazy for a successful prosecution; thus, process was dismissed.

THE FIRST TOP TEN

5 Omar August Pinson

Placed on list 3/18/50; arrested 8/28/52

OMAR AUGUST PINSON

In January of 1936, Omar August Pinson was sentenced to 18 months in the Eldora, Iowa, State Reformatory on a charge of armed robbery. After his release he engaged in activity resulting in a sentence in 1941 to the Missouri State Penitentiary for automobile tampering and in 1944, Pinson received a sentence to the Washington State Prison, Walla Walla, Washington for burglary.

Following his release from the Washington State Prison in 1945, Pinson, who had developed into one of the most accomplished house burglars on the West Coast, resumed his criminal specialty. He preferred early evening house burglaries and specialized in obtaining firearms wherever possible because of the ease with which he could dispose of them.

On April 15, 1947, in Hood River, Oregon, Pinson was returning to his truck after a burglary. Armed with a .32-20 automatic with which he had become proficient, he was approached by Oregon State Police Officer Delmond Rondeau. Pinson drew his weapon and fired, fatally wounding Officer Rondeau. Pinson eluded apprehension by running a state police blockade and by riding on a freight train. He was captured within 24 hours by the Oregon State Police and local officers at Ordance, Oregon. Sentenced to life imprisonment after being convicted of first degree murder, Pinson was sent to the Oregon State Penitentiary on May 24, 1947.

At 1:15 a.m. on May 30, 1949, Pinson escaped from the Oregon State Prison with a cellmate. Investigation by law enforcement officers throughout the Pacific Northwest during the summer of 1949 developed no clues to Pinson's whereabouts until September 4, 1949, when Pinson's confederate was arrested by police in Columbus, Ohio. After it had been determined he and Pinson had left Oregon within 24 hours of their escape, FBI assistance was requested. On September 7, 1949, process was filed before the United States Commissioner at Portland, Oregon, charging Pinson with unlawful flight from Salem, Oregon, outside the State of Oregon to avoid confinement after conviction on the charge of murder.

When FBI Agents interviewed Pinson's confederate upon his apprehension at Columbus, Ohio, he claimed Pinson had died of gunshot wounds suffered during their escape. He stated he had buried Pinson a few miles east of Kellogg, Idaho. Incidental to this statement he advised Columbus, Ohio, police officers he had buried Pinson near Salem, Oregon, about June 8, 1949, when the convict succumbed to gangrene.

While Pinson's confederate was attempting to locate Pinson's grave for police officers, Joseph Anthony Dorian became the object of a widespread search in eastern Washington and Idaho on charges of burglary.

THE FIRST TOP TEN

Dorian was subsequently identified as Pinson, and the search party for the Pinson grave was called in from the Idaho hills.

On January 30, 1950, the night police officer at Polson, Montana, intercepted four individuals, including Elmer Lee Payton and Sam Cignitti, in the course of a burglary of a hardware store. After an exchange of shots, the four burglars fled. Cignitti and Payton abandoned their transportation and fled. The remaining pair were captured in nearby Montana towns within a few days. Cignitti was determined to be Omar August Pinson.

On July 1, 1950, Payton was located and apprehended near Richwood, West Virginia, by a West Virginia State Police officer and returned to Nebraska for prosecution for burglary.

The investigation revealed that an individual resembling Pinson had purchased a 1942 Ford on February 3, 1950 and registered it in Brown County, South Dakota as D. C. Audell. All law enforcement officials in the State of South Dakota were alerted. As a result, Pinson was apprehended at Pierre, South Dakota, on August 28, 1950 by an officer of the South Dakota Highway Patrol and an FBI National Academy graduate assigned to the South Dakota Attorney General's Office as a law enforcement agent. In Pinson's car at the time of his apprehension was found a quantity of burglary equipment, together with a rifle, a shotgun and two revolvers.

On September 5, 1950, Omar August Pinson was returned to the Oregon State Penitentiary, where he was re-incarcerated. After his capture he reportedly told a weird tale of having been buried alive in Idaho by his cellmate with whom he had escaped from prison. Pinson was alleged to have stated, "I went out of my head from a fever. . . The man told me I was going to die and asked me what he should do. I remember telling him to bury me." Pinson said he awoke to find himself in a ditch covered with rocks and sticks. "I don't know how long I laid there," he allegedly said.

6 Lee Emory Downs

Placed on list 3/20/50; arrested 4/7/50

Lee Emory Downs' penchant for detail is perhaps the very thing that lead to his identification as one of the two men who entered and robbed a telephone company office in San Jose, California, June 3, 1948.

Downs had operated quite successfully for some time as an expert safecracker and member of a loosely-knit gang of skilled holdup men and burglars in three Pacific Coast states. On toward midnight of June 3, 1948, he and an accomplice walked into the telephone company office, bound and gagged its two workers, broke into the safe and removed more than $10,800.

The victims, when interviewed, said Downs and his accomplice placed the money in a small metal wastebasket, carefully picked up their tools and quietly walked out the front door and onto the street. They said prior to the robbery they had observed a 1948 beige-colored Oldsmobile convertible parked outside the business office of the telephone company. It was readily identified as belonging to C. E. Gordon. C. E. Gordon was determined to be Downs.

On August 3, 1948, a complaint was filed with the United States Commissioner at San Jose, California charging Downs with violating Section 408e, Title 18 of the U.S. Code by unlawfully fleeing from the State of California to avoid prosecution for the crime of burglary.

The FBI traced Downs to Daytona Beach, Florida where Downs and his wife had been residing at a local trailer park. Officers waited for Downs to leave the trailer and as he climbed into his car, the officers moved in. Downs was apprehended without resistance. A search of the trailer revealed two pistols, six rifles, nine sticks of dynamite, twelve electric detonating fuses, and two leather briefcases filled with ammunition.

Downs was returned to San Jose, convicted for robbery and imprisoned. In 1968, he was paroled, but after attempting to burglarize the Colombian consulate in San Francisco, he was returned to prison for a violation of parole.

7 Orba Elmer Jackson

Placed on list 3/21/50; arrested 3/23/50

A Missouri farm boy, self-respecting and hardworking, Orba Elmer Jackson became dissatisfied with his family's way of life. In 1924, at the age of eighteen, he was convicted on a charge of grand larceny of an automobile in Joplin, Missouri. Convicted, he was sentenced to 6 years in the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City.

A few months after release from prison in 1928, Jackson violated the Interstate Transportation of Stolen Motor Vehicle Act by stealing a car. He was sentenced to three years in the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas.

After his release from Leavenworth, Jackson spent a few years working as a barber and for a time, as a shoemaker. But, in 1936, Jackson, with an accomplice, robbed a store near Poplar Bluff, Missouri. Jackson severely beat up the elderly man who operated the store, which also served as a United States Post Office.

On April 8, 1936, Jackson was convicted of assault and armed robbery of a United States Post Office and sentenced to serve twenty-five years. Two days later he was back at Leavenworth Prison.

On the basis of good behavior, Jackson was transferred to an honor farm outside the prison walls on September 3, 1947. Three weeks after his transfer, he was missing. Orba Jackson was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury at Kansas City, Missouri on March 18, 1949 charged with unlawfully and feloniously escape from the custody of the Attorney General at the Honor Farm of the United States Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas.

THE FIRST TOP TEN

In 1950, a concerned citizen, suspicious of Jackson, wrote a letter to the FBI office in Portland. Immediately afterwards, Jackson was placed on the "Top Ten" list and the story appeared in the Portland Oregonian. When the FBI contacted the citizen regarding the letter, he had in his possession the story in the Portland Oregonian, which he said had verified his suspicions.

Jackson had been working on a nearby poultry farm where he was apprehended, surrendering without resistance. On a plea of guilty, Jackson was sentenced to two years to run concurrently with his sentence being served. He was returned to Leavenworth on September 19, 1950.

8 Glen Roy Wright

Placed on list 3/22/50; arrested 12/13/50

The names Alvin Karpis, Fred Barker, Pretty Boy Floyd and Adam Richetti recall days when bloodthirsty, murderous gangs roamed, virtually at will, through large areas in the United States. But the FBI, in cooperation with local law enforcement agencies, in the early 1930s smashed these criminal outfits.

Glen Roy Wright was a former associate of the Karpis-Barker Gang. His career of crime was marked by violence and deadly gunfire. On two occasions he was involved in gun fights with arresting officers. He was shot during his apprehension in Kansas, where he attempted to murder the arresting officials with a sawed-off shotgun. Later he was wounded in a gun battle with police officers in Arkansas.

On September 14, 1948, Wright escaped from prison. Since 1934, he had been serving a life sentence for armed robbery at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary. A complaint was filed before a United States Commissioner, Tulsa, Oklahoma, on February 8, 1949, charging Wright with violating the Unlawful Flight to Avoid Prosecution Statute by unlawfully fleeing from the State of Oklahoma to avoid prosecution for the crime of robbery.

Only 9 months after Wright made the "Top Ten" list, he was recognized by concerned citizens who notified the FBI. Wright was apprehended at Salina, Kansas on December 13, 1950. He was returned to complete a life sentence at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary, McAlester, Oklahoma, where he died on May 7, 1954.

9 Henry Harland Shelton

Placed on list 3/23/50; arrested 6/23/50

Henry Harland Shelton, prison escapee, added kidnapping and car theft to his criminal repertoire on September 17, 1949. Shortly before midnight, an electrical worker stopping for a sandwich in Amasa, Michigan, walked out of the lunchroom to his car where two men with drawn knives forced him into the front seat. There, pinned between his kidnapers, under constant threat of death, the victim was forced to accompany the pair on a wild cross-country ride which lasted through the night, the following day, and into the early morning of the second day.

The “cruise” extended from Michigan, to Illinois and into Wisconsin, then back to Illinois and Indiana. In route to Indianapolis the kidnapers stole a license plate from a parked car.

The victim learned from his captors they had escaped September 5, 1949, from the Michigan House of Correction and Branch Prison, and had been living in the woods twelve days.

On the morning of the second day, the kidnapers stopped for breakfast at a filling station in Kontmorenci, Indiana. While one ate his meal, the other guarded the victim. Constantly on the alert for an opportunity to break away, the victim sprang from the car and ran. His captor pursued him for a short distance, then returned to the car and blew his horn for his partner. After the two kidnapers left, the victim returned to the filling station and contacted the Indiana State Police.

The two men, identified as Henry Harland Shelton, and Sam Lieb, abandoned their victim’s car and stole three additional automobiles in rapid succession. In each instance the owner was threatened with a knife in the course of the theft.

Lieb was apprehended in the course of a holdup but Shelton, with him at the time, made good his escape. On October 14, 1949, a Federal Grand Jury at South Bend, Indiana, returned an indictment charging Shelton with violating the Federal Kidnapping Statute and the Interstate Transportation of a Stolen Motor Vehicle Statute.

Three months after making the “Top Ten” list, Shelton was apprehended. Special Agents learned Shelton patronized a neighborhood tavern regularly. On June 23, 1950 Special Agents of the FBI and officers of the Indianapolis Police Department took strategic positions outside the tavern to prevent Shelton’s escape. As Shelton approached the tavern entrance a Special Agent moved in behind him at a distance to block his escape. Another Agent confronted Shelton and, calling to him by name, identified himself as an FBI Agent. He advised Shelton he was under arrest. Shelton stepped backwards and turned, grabbing a .45 caliber automatic pistol which had been concealed in his belt. As he drew the gun both Agents fired and Shelton fell to the ground.

Following Shelton’s arrest, his automatic was determined to be fully loaded with a cartridge in the chamber. On August 21, 1950, a recovered Henry Shelton entered a plea of guilty in United States District Court at Hammond, Indiana, to charges of violating the Federal Kidnapping Statute and the Interstate Transportation of Stolen Motor Vehicle Statute. He received a sentence of forty-five years on the kidnaping charge and five years on the car theft charge, sentences to run concurrently.

10 Morris Guralnick

Placed on list 3/24/50; arrested 12/15/50

A product of the slums of New York City's east side, Morris Guralnick was high on the list of most wanted men. Highly emotional and violent, his vicious and apparently uncontrollable actions marked him as an extremely dangerous fugitive.

A constant frequenter of burlesque theatres, Guralnick worked as popcorn vender and candy butcher in such establishments in both Canada and the United States.

In April 1948, Guralnick allegedly stabbed his former girlfriend. When he was taken into custody in connection with the stabbing, he resisted violently and, in the struggle which followed, bit off the finger of an arresting officer.

Guralnick was confined in the Ulster County Jail at Kingston, New York. On July 11, 1948, while awaiting trial for assaulting the victim, this prisoner and four other inmates broke the jail's plumbing fixtures, brutally assaulted two jail guards with broken pipes, and escaped. All, with the exception of Guralnick, were recaptured. One guard was hospitalized with severe head injuries as a result of the jail break.

The grand jury at Kingston, New York, indicted Guralnick on several charges arising out of the jail break. Local authorities sought the aid of the FBI in locating Guralnick and on July 22, 1948, a complaint was filed before a United States Commissioner charging him with fleeing from the State of New York to avoid prosecution for the crime of aggravated assault.

In view of his emotional instability and previous vicious acts, he was characterized as "a wild-eyed" person and a constant menace to society. From the publicity surrounding his addition to the "Top Ten" list, Guralnick was finally apprehended.

Guralnick had fled to Madison, Wisconsin where he was working at a clothing store. A customer recognized Guralnick's photo from an article in the Coronet magazine and contacted the local authorities. FBI Agents and local police cornered Guralnick at his place of business. Never one to give up easily, Guralnick battled the arresting officers. Finally apprehending him, Guralnick was extradited to New York.
